Troubled Day

It was a day full of waiting. The Admin/tech support personel in sofia is a real pain in the ass. I waited half a day for a simple debian base install. The guy installed debian over already installed freebsd on a server we sent destined for colocation in evolink. The machine is great dual 3ghz Xeon with 3 x 70 gb SCSI discs. In 4:00 o'clock I received a mail with username and password of the server, but the system was unaccessible for 1 more hour. I got really nervous I received tons of calls from the boss, our project Manager, Vladi the PHP programmer. I logged to the server in 5:00 and configured apache with mysql upto 10:00 o'clock then did a little walk with nomen in the central park and drinked one beer per capita. I had to meet Static and Amri in 6:00 o'clock but I was busy configuring the new rack so I missed a great oportunity to have fun with old friends. ORDER has to come back to Bulgaria, today or even he maybe is already in Varna. I'm quite impatient to see him! In the afternoon I went to some spiritual downfalls but now Thanks to God I'm alive and well. The pozvanete site already points to the new rack so I hope the machine would be able to serve it's goal perfect. This will be made clear in the morning. Soon I'm going to bed. Glory be to God for fulfilling me with his love and sustaining my life and keeping me from evil! END-----
